ATLANTA, GEORGIA, SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 25, 1887.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE SLUMP IN STOCKS

Almost a Panic in Wall Street Yesterday.

MANHATTAN HAS A FEARFUL TUMBLE.

Causes of the Flurry-Rumor of Jay Gould' Death-Letter From Mr. Gould to

NEW YORK, June 24 .- [Special.]-Wall street has not experienced such a disastrous panic as afflicted it today, in years. The wrecks of May, 1884, and the wretchedness of ember, 1886, were not comparable to the wild excitement and serious damages of today. Colossal fortunes were swept away in an hour, and many a man who left home this morning with the proud consciousness of wealth, returns tonight bankrupt and hopeless.

The raid was not on fancy specialties, as it was last December, but there seemed to be a lden and total destruction of confidence in all values and the entire list of stocks-good, bad, and indifferent—went to smash. The decline set in immediately after the opening, and there was no check to the ruinous sacrifice metil after noon. Alarming rumors filled the air, and the maddening scene on the floor of the exchange was past all description. Manipulators of the money market helped the awful collapse on by calling in loans and for cing lines of long stock to sale. Money was rapidly bid up to one huddred per cent a year. Under this pressure universal ruin looked in-evitable. The most wonderful fact of the day is that no failures have been announced. Some may be reported tomorrow, and that apprehension fills everybody tonight with fear and trembling.

Conservative men express the opinion that the worst is over, but nobody feels confident and easy. If the trouble is renewed tomorrow it is impossible to predict the limit of disaster. At one time today Mr. Gould was reported dead, at another it was said Cyrus Field was the action of the confidence of th broke and still another rumor made Russell Sage a victim to the widespread slaughter of the hour.

Many say that the ruinous turn and tumble in prices today was in a great measure the re-sult of the recent collapse in coffee here; in wheat at Chicago; in gas at Baltimore and the disaster to the Fidelity bank at Cincinnati. Certainly all these unfavorable occurrences shook public confidence violently, and Wall street's terrible aggravation of those evils today shocks all matters of finance from London to San Francisco. It is a serious backset to gen-eral prosperity and makes men timid about all classes of securities and suspicious even of legitimate enterprises. In this sense it is a calamity to the whole country.

The following figures tell briefly the sad and ruinous record of the day: Manhattan, at its extreme decline, had fallen from the opening price $42 per share; Missouri Pacific $15; Richmond Terminal $7.75; New England 35.75; Texas Pacific $6; Western Union $7.50, and so on through the list. Before the close and so on through the list. Before the close there was a sharp recovery, but very few stocks at the finish were nearly so high as last night. The talk tonight is that the awful slump is due to a concerted action between Gould, Sage and Field, aimed at the total annihilation of Henry Ives, recently of Baltimore and Ohio deal fame. And thus again has Gould put his iron hand at the throat of Wall street and nhoked it nearly to death. He goes to bed tocight with the unavoidable consciousness of having ruined men by the score, and has no other pay for his work but a knowledge of an increase in his own millions.

New York, June 24.—The excitement in the stock market reached its greatest heighth shortly before noon, and a veritable panic was developed. No attention was paid by brokers to fractions in sales made by them, and fluctuations were so wild that sales were sometimes from five to ten per centapart. Stocks bought pear the opening were thrown over when the break occurred, and this selling completely demolished speculators. The marking down of loans and delivery of orders kept the clerks and messengers as busy, as the brokers, and the street was the scene of more excitement than has been witnessed lines the May panic of 1885. The greatest declines, so far recorded, are Manhatten 40½ to 116: Missouri Pacific 11 per cent to 93½; cotton seed 7 per cent 10 39; Richmond Terminal 7½ to 26: New England 6 to 46½, and Lake Erie and Western 5 to 53½. The room during the panic was filled with rumors of all kinds and telegrams from all points followed each other in rapid succession, giving selling orders and inquiries about many reports which were, by this time, circulated all over the country. Increased short interest saved the room from a money panic by its demand for stocks for delivery and S. V. White and some other large operators entered the market and began buying freely. They White and some other large operators entered the market and began buying freely. They soon gathered a large following, and the buy-ing turned the market almost as rapidly as it

A reporter of the associated press saw Gould in his office. Mr. Gould furnished him with the following letter which he had just sent to John Kiernan:

He said that the situation so far did not seem to require any assistance from the treasury. He intimated very plainly that should a panic seem imminent he would authorize the prepayment of interest due July 1, which would felease about $9,000,000. He also said that if it should become necessary he would offer to redeem at once, without rebate, $19,000,000 three per cent bonds, maturing July 1st.

A Game Two Can Play—Canadians to Be Stopped from Crossing the Line to Work.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., June 24.—The recent order of the Dominion government to Canadian custom officials, at Windsor, Ont., to make a record of all Americans residing at Detroit and Michisty who daily cross the line to engage in Work in Canada has led to a counter move by Collector Cutler, at Niagara Falis and suspension bridge. This morning as Canadian laborers, numbering about 200 who are employed alpon this side, reached our frontier they were surprised to find at this end of the suspension bridge deputies who demanded their names, age, residence, occupation, and where and by whom they were employed. During the day motices were served upon employers of these doreigners that it they should continue to employ such foreign labor after July first, the United States district attorney would be recommended to proceed against them according to A Game Two Can Play-Canadians to Be

POSTMASTERS' SALARIES.

Annual Adjustment of the Presidential Grade—Increase and Decrease in Pay.

Washington, June 21.—[Special.]—The annual adjustment of the salaries of the postoffices of the presidential grade, has been completed by the postal officials. These presidential postoffices, so called because the salary being at least one thousand dollars a year, the postmaster is appointed by the president, are of three classes. The first class comprises those offices where the salary is three thousand dollars or more; the second class range from two thousand to three thousand dollars; and the third class from one thousand to two thousand dellars. Under the law the pay of the presidential postmasters must be adjusted at the beginning of each fiscal year. One of the most gratifying exhibits of the present adjustment is the very general increase of salaries which is considered by the department as an unfailing indication of business prosperity, as it has been found that the postal revenues upon which the salary is predicated, are quick to respond to any commercial expansion.

There is in Georgia 1,515 postoffices of all classes, of which 28 are of the presidential rank. The largest increase of salary secured is two hundred dollars, both Bainbridge and Madison receiving this additional income. On the other hand two offices, Cuthbert and Thomasville, suffer a reduction of two hundred dollars. Twelve offices get an increase of a single hundred dollars and increase of a single hundred dollars. The only office promoted from the fourth class to the presidential grade since the last adjustment has been Waycross.

RANDALL FOR PRESIDENT.

Remarks of a Prominent Southern Den

crat-Iron Men Coming South. WASHINGTON, June 24.—[Special.]—It is said here that Cleveland has done himself no little harm in his position on the matter of returning the captured flags. The friends of the administration cannot satisfactorily explain. turning the captured hags. The friends of the administration cannot satisfactorily explain.

"The mistake is not so trifling as has been indicated," said a prominent southern democrat today. The democratic party may be forced to nominate Cleveland, but Randall would be the strongest man that the party could nominate. It may not appear feasible just now to nominate Randall, but he is growing more popular in the south every day. The protection sentiment is gaining strength every day in Georgia and Alabama. North Alabama is certainly strongly in favor of protection. The Birmingham Chronicle has been the pioneer tariff paper in Alabama and Georgia Cruikshank is today the silent Warwick of Alabama politics. As for the protection sentiment, it would not surprise many good friends of the Advertiser if it should be found, after awhile on the right side of the tariff question. Randall will be a strong man in Alabama and Georgia, where the people have more concern for a safe administration than they have for the old heresies of the past."

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

Incident of the Burning of the Steamer Champlain

A WOMAN'S LONG SWIM FOR THE SHORE

Carrying a Child With Her Safely by Seizing Its Clothing in Her Teeth-Deeds of Heroism Related.

CHICAGO, June 24.—The schooner Racine the crew of which rescued the survivors of the Champlain disaster, arrived last evening. At the time the Champlain caught fire the Racine was laying alongside a pier, six miles from Charlevoix. Captain Hanson woke up and saw the burning steamer and sent a part of his crew in a yawl to rescue the perishing passengers. With the remainder of his crew he ran gers. With the remainder of his crew he ran down the beach to an old fish boat, launched it and started for the wreck. The boat had not been used for a long time, and leaked.

When about half way to the Champlain, Captain Hanson came across a young woman who was swimming toward the shore with a child. This was Miss Mary Wakefield, of Charlevoix. She had jumped overboard with a six-year-old child of Captain Kehoe clasped in her arms. Grasping a broken fender, she clung to it, and seizing the clothing of the child in her teeth, she bravely struck out for the shore. Captain she bravely struck out for the shore. Captain Hanson says she is the pluckiest woman he ever saw in his life. When he started to take her into the boat, she told him to hurry away to the others, as she could take care of herself. She reached the shore in safety, and when another of the shipwrecked passengers was taken from the boat in an almost frozen condition, she took off her flannel underskirt and wrapped it around him. When Captain Hanson reached

Among the bodies picked up by Captain Hanson was that of Mrs. Ella Cooper Smith, of Charlevoix. It was found floating on the surface of the lake and the position of the life preserver showed Mrs. Smith had worked it down so as to keep as much of her body as possible out of the loy water. Becoming bepossible out of the icy water. Becoming be-numbed and fatigued, her head had fallen over until it was submerged, and she was drowned. LOSSES BY STRIKES.

Chicago Bricklayers Lose Two and a Half Millions in Wages.

CHICAGO, June 24.-It is difficult to estimate with accuracy the full extent of the financial loss resulting from the strike which financial loss resulting from the strike which the bricklayers declared off last night. The local loss in wages can be closely computed and Chicago merchants can estimate the amount of trade which has been sacrificed. Aside from this, however, the miners are idle in Pennsylvania; saw mills and their operatives in Michigan and Wisconsin; thousands of men are thrown out of work in the stone quarries adjacent to the city; the pressed brick trade is affected all over the United States; thousands of dollars have been lost to railroad companies; every branch of manufacture identified in any way with the building trades is a direct sufferer from the strike. A careful estimate made of the loss in wages to striking and locked out employes in the vicinity of Chicago alone foots up nearly two and one-half million dollars. It would be difficult to name a trade or business not directly a sufferer from this protracted strike.

Late last night at a meeting of the Brick Layers' union a resolution was passed, withdrawing the demand for a Saturday payday, and declaring the strike off. This action was taken, it was declared, on account of pressure that was brought to bear on the brick layers by private citizens and business men who suffered heavy losses through the stoppage of work. The resolution gives material dealers an opportunity to begin selling again, as their agreement with the master masons is binding only during a strike. The strike having been declared off, the labor trouble here being thus resolved into a lockout pure and simple. The brick layers declare they will now prosecute the stone pool for conspiracy in case of refusal to sell stone to contractors friendly to the brick layers. the bricklayers declared off last night. W orkmen stated that they had no power to withdraw the 10 per cent advanced asked on their scale, but were willing to make concessions on extras. The manufacturers maintained the stand taken at a previous conference, that no increase would be granted, and after a session of three hours, the conference adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock, this afternoom. The impression is growing that the committee will be unable to agree and that there will be a strike.

Striking Against Hungarians.

Philadelphia, June 24.—At the Atlantic oil refinery, at Point Breeze, trouble has been brewing for some time. About a half dozen-Hungarians had been put to work by the superintendent of cleaning stills. The older still cleaners were engaged at this and demanded the discharge of the foreigners, and also a certain change in the manner in which the work should be done. The superintendent declined to accede to the demands and the men went out. Employes in the other departments this morning reiterated the demand for the discharge of the Hungarians, and also demanded the reinstatement of the men who had gone out. Officials of the company declared that they would not permit the men to dictate to them how the business should be run and employes to the number of 625 at once went out on strike.

TRADE REVIEW FOR THE WEEK.

Money Rather Close in the West—Effects of the Fidelity Bank Failure.

New York, June 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade for the week ending today, says:

The withdrawal of fund: from New York to meet immediate needs at the west, has caused a temporary stringency here, which speculators have magnified, but foreign exchange is so near the shipping point, and the supply of muusad funds abroad is so large, that relief would come quickly if the needs here should become serious. Moscover large disbursements by the treasurer in July are now close at hand. In the half yearly settlements, in the struggle to liquidate enormous speculations, and in preparation for the summaer dulines, however, there may be some pressure for money during the remaining days of June.

The treasury has paid out $500,000 more money than it has taken in this week, besides increasing its deposits with banks about a million, At nearly all other points money is reported in good supply, but Chicago exchange on New York is at seventy-five cents discount. The demands from St. Louis are also felt, and money is rather close at Cleveland with exchange scarce and firm at Milwaukee. Cincinnati banks were generally well supplied, having anticipated trouble, but the extent of rottenness in the Fidelity was not realized, and some trouble for its stockholders, under the double liability law, is now apprehended.

The general reports of business at nearly all points are highly encouraging. No trouble from the wheat collapse is reported, except at the points already named, and the increasing prospect of good crops adds to the prevailing confidence.

Collections are generally fair, or good, and the volume of business large for the season. Liquidation in cotton proceeds slowly, but prices have declined % for the week, with sales of about $0,000 bales. Walhalla, S. C. WARNINGS SERVED ON CITIZENS.

Notices Posted on Walls and Fences Defam ing the Character of the Best Cit-izens in the Town-Arrests.

WESTMINSTEE, S. C., June 24 .- [Special.]-The incendiary fire which was reported from Walhalla, S. C., in the dispatches seems to have been the crowning act in a series of diabolical outrages which have been perpetrated against the good people of that quiet village for the past several years. The people of Walhalla and of Westminster also, which is Walhalla and of Westminster also, which is really a part of the first named town, though under a separate incorporation, have been annoyed from time to time by the posting upon the premises of the leading citizens of anonymous notices, containing scurrilous and obscene language reflecting upon the good name of the inmates of different households. These occasional notices had been treated with indifference or contempt until last Friday, the 17th, when their authors became so bold in their devilish designs of defaming the character of virtuous people that matters reached a crisis.

During the night previous, a number of anonymous notices, in the same handwriting as all former ones, were posted in several public places in Walhalla and West Union. These notices contained the names of the wives and daughters of many of the purest and best families of the two towns, and were so full of obscenity and yulgarity as to cause the vilest black guard to blush with shame. notices contained the names of the wives and daughters of many of the purest and best families of the two towns, and were so full of obscenity and vulgarity as to cause the vilest blackguard to blush with shame. Such insults had now become too numerous and too public to be borne, and the people, aroused with indignation, resolved to stop them. Suspicion had already marked out the guility ones, and the discovery of a pocket book near where one of the notices was posted, led to the issuing of warrants for I. K. Hunter, Walter Hodges and — Saddler, all of West Union. A number of others were suspected, some of them of highly respectable family connection. A little village was perhaps never so thoroughly aroused with indignation as was Walhalla and West Union. The pent up wrath of a long suffering people had burst forth in the wildest fury. Thus stood matters on Monday night, when the people retired to rest, little dreaming that to the unhallowed defamation of their characters would be added an effort to burn up their property. Such was the case, however, as was reported in The Constitution. The loss by the fire is now known to be more serious than was first believed. In addition to the entire outfit of the Kiowee Courier office, the law libraries of Thompson & Jaynes and Keith & Verner were a complete loss. Among these were many valuable law books difficult to be replaced at any cost. John S. Verner, of the firm of Keith & Verner, was clerk of the board of county commissioners and with his office were destroyed nearly all the county records. Many important papers pertaining to unsettled estates, which are usually kept in the county clerk's safe, were in the different law offices undergoing preparations for court, which convenes at Walhalla next week.

The destruction of these will cause much trouble. The courthouse square with its pleasant grove and comfortable offices, now presents a forbidding appearance with its charred ruins and blackened shade trees. Only two buildings remain, the courthouse and law office of Mills through the heart, killing him instantly. The murderer escaped.

R. W. Traylor, a young white man, was arrested here today for murder. He killed a lawyer, named W. Wharton, in Randolph county, about six weeks ago. Traylor was on his way to Texas when captured. In a note book, found in his pocket, there was written a full account of the crime and a sketch of his life with the name and address of his parents.

A PITIABLE CASE.

A Young Girl Ruined by Her Brother-in-Law. Law.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 24.—[Special.]—
Mary Lyons, a pretty Alabama girl, just budding into womanhood, sat weeping in the mayor's court room this morning and begged some one to kill her. Late last night she was brought to Chattanooga by her brother-in-law, Ben Hammond, who took advantage of her womanly weakness and seduced her and the couple were arrested by the police. Hammond married her sister many years ago and six children were the result of the union, Hammond treated her so cruelly that she became a raving maniac, and then he left home, deserted his six children and brought his pure young sister-in-law here and ruined her. She told a most pitiful story in court, Hammond was fined $200 and sent to the chaingang.

ANOTHER DIFFICULTY

Over Some Glass Works Insurance—Two Insurance Men in Court.

The glass works company's insurance has furnished another slight sensation.

This time the contending parties are Mr. Mark Berry and Mr. M. N. Torbett.

Mr. Torbett was the defendant in a possessory warrant case in Justice Tanner's court, yesterday, and Mr. Berry was the prosecutor. The property over which the difficulty arose was a $2,500 insurance policy.

Mr. Berry charged Mr. Torbett with having taken the aforesaid policy from the pocket of the complainant and with having the same still in his possession. Mr. Torbett showed that the policy was not in his possession, and the warrant was therefore dismissed.

Mr. Torbett claims that the action he took was perfectly proper. He says that through some misrepresentations Mr. Berry gailed to live up to his part of the agreement, and that Mr. Berry did not make any objection to his taking the paper until he learned of the burning of the works.

The Rome policy was issued upon the cancellation of a policy in the Niagara, and hence was not binding until accepted by the glass company. This had never been done. Mr. Torbett had received notice from his company that the risk was not acceptable, and it was on this account that he got it back.

The policy is now in the hands of the Rome company, having been sent back in the regular way.

The policy in the Niagara has not, it is said, way.

The policy in the Niagara has not, it is said, been regularly cancelled, and in that case the glass company will not be a loser. But there will doubtless be further litigation between Torbett and Berry.

The College Societies Have an Animated Discussion Over the Question.

Macon, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—Tonight at 8:30 a large crowd assembled at Masonic hall to witness the Mercer university debate between the Phi Delta and Ciceronian societies.

B. W. Helveston, of the Phi Delta, made an eloquent speech of half an hour's duration on the affirmative side of the question, "That the Just Punishment of Criminals, Instead of their Reformation, be the Object of the Law." He was followed by F. C. C. McConnell, of Towns county, the brilliant young Ciceronian, on the negative, who spoke off-hand for thirty-five minutes and was greeted from time to time with roars of applause. He possessed oratorical talent of the highest order.

After music, J. W. Overstreet, of Screven county, replied in a spicy oration full of telling points and witty thrusts. L. Kennedy, of Tainall county, came back in an able argument on the negative, and then the band played. R. S. Ellis, of Bibb county, closed the affimative side of the debate in a vigorous appeal for his side of the debate in a vigorous

BOSTON COLORED GENTS

Try to Ride in a White Coach on the Georgia Road—The Consequences.

Passengers on the Georgia fast train were treated to quite a rare sensation yesterday.

Just after leaving Atlanta, when Conductor Harris went through the train taking up tickets before the first station was reached, he noticed two well dressed negroes occupying seats in the first-class white coach. He approached them, and requested them to go into the car provided for persons of their race, which is, indeed, a first-class car. They informed him that they hailed from Boston and had no idea of so doing. Mr. Harris again asked them to change cars, telling them that if they did not do so trouble would be caused by it.

Johnstone, a lawyer of Newberry, to come to their assistance. Colonel Johnstone arrived in the evening and called on the prisoners at the jail, and informed them that if aftor investigating the case he found reasonable evidence of their guilt, he should leave them to their fate.

A Man, a Large Grizzly and a Rattlesnake

AT THE BOTTOM OF A PROSPECT HOLE.

But He Comes Out of the Hole With Old Bruin's Meat.

CALIENTE, Cal., June 20 .- One-eyed Zeke, who hunts for a living around Owen lake and along Owen river over in Inyo, came in yesterday to be doctored for a sprained ankle. Sprain-ing that ankle saved his life on this last trip. Zeke has a scheme of his own for killing grizzlies that is yery effective if a man has neve enough to work it and his gun doesn't miss fire. He carries a heavy double-barreled shotgun and a 44-calibre revolver, but never lugs a rifle even when he goes after bears. When he sights a grizzly he pops at him with the revolver and gets him mad, standing in the open where the bear can see him, and shooting often enough to dispel any possible doubts in the bear's noddle about the annoyance.

about the annoyance.

A grizzly will go his own way usually if not interfered with, but if insulted with pistol shots he is pretty certain to, make a disturbance of the peace. The exasperated bear snaps viciously at the place where the pistol ball strikes him, concludes that Zeke is responsible for the trouble and goes for him. Zeke waits calmly with a double load of heavy shot in each barrel and the hammers at full cock. Caleb comes right up to him, and when almost in lungging distance, rises on his hind legs to throw himself upon Zeke. Then Zeke, turns loose both barrels at the bear's chest, and blows a hole as big as two fists nearly through him. The heavy charge at such close range smashes the grizzly's interior works in a deplorable manuer, and he dies right away. It is far more effective than an express rifle bullet. But it requires nerve to face a big, ugly bear and reserve fire until he is within half a dozen feet of the gun.

Zeke met a bear in the mountains near Owen by a content of the color o to face a big, ugly bear and reserve nee until lake and played his customary game, but not with complete success. By some extraordinary bad luck, both cartridges in his gun had defective primers, and when he pulled the triggers he was very much pained and disappointed by the absence of the usual loud report. It was a critical moment for Zeke. It took him the thousandth part of a second to grasp the situation and spring desperat ly to the right. Another small fraction of a second was consumed in his unexpected descent to the bottom of an old prospect hole that was overgrown with brush and escaped his notice.

Probably that is the only prospect hole in that part of the Sierra Nevada, and it must have been dug by some half-cracked fortyniner like Marshall, who prospected all the way from Yuma to the Columbia. Zeke vows it was dug by Providence.

The sudden and unaccountable disappearance of the man with the gun surprised the bear, and he had thrown himself forward and plunged into the chapparal several yards before he began to catch on to the fact that Zeke was not before him. As soon as Zeke struck bottom, he looked up to see if the bear was coming down too, and then he removed the bad cartridges and quickly inserted two more in his gun. He knew the bear would smell him out very soon.

rey soon.

In half a minute Caleb's wicked snout appeared at the top of the hole. It disappeared, and was at once replaced by the bear's hind legs. Caleb was coming down stern foremost after the noxious person who had fired bullets at him. As the bear scrambled down Zeke aimed just under his shoulder and sent two handfuls of buckshot careering through his vitals in a diagonal line. The wound was almost instantly fatal, and the bear came down in a heap at the bottom of the hole, which was about ten or twelve feet deen

The excitement being over, Zeke realized that he had been injured in the fall, and that standing up was painful. He sat down on the bear to rest and reflect, and to induce reflection he took out his pipe and lighted it. The flare of the match lighted up the prospect hole, and Zeke was interested on seeing a good-sized rattlesnake lying dead under his feet, its head crushed by his bootheel. He had landed on the snake when he fell into the hole, and the slipping of his foot had sprained his ankle.

Zeke had a hard time climbing out of the prospect hole and getting back to camp, but he got there, and sent some men up to hoist the bear to the surface. The grizzly's weight was estimated to be 900 pounds.

Zeke says he doesn't care about the sprain, because if his foot had not landed just in that spot he would have had more company than he would have cared to entertained at the bottom of a prospect hole.

A DESPERATE GANG.

What Captein William Scott, of the Texas ngers, Says About the Conner From the Fort Worth Gazette.

From the Fort Worth Gazette.

There arrived in Fort Worth yesterday a gentleman who has become famous in Texas for his bravery and coolness, but especially for his bravery and coolness, but especially for his bravery and coolness, but especially for his recent sanguinary contest with a band of desperadoes in Sabine county known as the Conners gang. This man was Captain William Scott, of the state rangers. He was accompanied by Sergeant J. A. Brooks, of his company.

peradoes in Sabine county known as the Conners gang. This man was Captain William Scott, of the state rangers. He was accompanied by Sergeant J. A. Brooks, of his company.

Captain Scott is a handsome, modest and quiet gentleman, with coal-black hair and mustache, and a kind brown eye. In a brief interview he said he had been ordered with his command to Weatherford by Governor Ross, and was now on his way there. He did not know as yet what he was to do, but had seen the telegram in the Gazette, stating what his mission would be, but had received no official information in regard to the matter.

He was questioned in regard to the Conners' fight, and spoke freely of the contest. He said his party of six men were in close pursuit, and early in the morning, before it was daylight, with their rifles in their hands ready for work, they came on the four desperadoes. They did not know their exact whereabouts until a volley was poured into the rangers, four of them being shot at the first tire. The Conners were behind trees and had a decided advantage; They were only thirty feet from the rangers. He could see by flashes from his Winchester where one of the enemy was, and he fired from one side and Sergeant Brooks and another ranger from the other. They killed this man. The others fought until their Winchesters were emptied. When shot, Captain Scottsays he was learning forward to peer into the woods in front of him when he received a 44-bullet in his left shoulder, the ball passing through one lung, breaking two ribs near the spine and lodging under the skin, where the ball was cut out. He carrief the flattened bullet as a reminder of the closest call he ever had in his life. Captain Scott says the Conners are still in Sabine country, and before he left Hemphill it was stated that inside of ten days they would be sending venison hams to Hemphill for sale. He eavys the band sees no one but women folks. They do not communicate with their friends, for these friends can take their freedom from them but cannot grant it, and a

STANLEY AS A CONFEDERATE. In Entertaining Story of the Great Explor-

An Entertaining Story of the Great Explorer's Early Career.

Little Rock, Ark., June 23.—Of course Henry M. Stanley, the great African explorer, is known by reputation to everybody. But in conversation today with Colonel Lee L. Thompson, who was state senator from this county two years ago, your correspondent learned the following bit of information concerning the explorer's early career in Arkansas that will be interesting to everybody. In 1862 Stanley entered the confederate service as first lieutenant in Captain Whitsett's company, Colonel Lee L. Thompson's regiment. He was a bright, sparkling young man about 5 feet 9\(^3\) inches in height, weighing 135 pounds and in complexion a blond. For awhile he was the life of his company, his experience in the world, his native shrewdness and liberal education combining to make him the center of attraction in the camp. In the spring of 1863 the regiment was camped on the Arkansas river just below Ozark, and while thus camped, pay day rolled around. The quartermaster was also paymaster, and, although irregular in proceedure, he would foot up the amount over to the senior officer of the company for distribution among the soldiers.

At this time, Captain Whitsett was absent, and Lieutenant Stanley was, of course, the senior officer, acting as captain. Into his hands the money was placed to pay out to the men. That morning he obtained a leave of absence for the day, and at once rode away into the country. When night began to draw her sable robes around the scenes of nature, the young lieftenant was still absent. Knowing him to be a northern man, the soldiers at once became uneasy, and without hesitancy expressed their fears to Colonel Thompson. Next morning Colonel Thompson started two men in pursuit of the absent man. They got on his trail and followed him to the Rio Grande river, but were unable to catch him. He had money, and would occasionally but a fresh horse. The two men sent after Stanley were gone forty days.

Stanley worked his way north and later on, during th the live coals.

Lay the steak, chops, ham or fish on a wire broiler or meat rack, placing it in an ordinary bake pan to catch the drippings.

Allow it to remain in the oven with the door closed 15 or 20 minutes. No turning is required. At the end of this time it will be found nicely cooked ready to serve.

THIS IS THE IDEAL WAY TO BROIL FLATS.

There is no tail to focul seed seed. There is no taint of coal-gas or smoke, and the meats are more tender and better in flavor than those broiled over the coals. The convenience or broiling in the oven will be appreciated by every house-keeper, and adds another to the many reasons why the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Gen Door should be preferred to all others now in the market.

The Monticello People Receive a Hearty Welcome.

A BIG SUNDAY-SCHOOL EXCURSION.

Macon's Hospitality-The Day in the Courts Other News of Interest From the Central City.

MACON, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—Today being St. John's day, was most appropriately selected by the Monticello Sunday-schools to go picknicing. The children of the three schools, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian, schools, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian, composed the party.

Major Key had promised them long ago that then the railroad got in running order he would bring them all down to Macon and have a good time.

This morning at 7:05 a train of four coaches filled with bright-oyed boys and girls, happy imaidens and a sprinkling of older ones as chap erones, rolled out from Monticello, southward bound. They made the run in good time and arrived in Macon at 10:50.

farrived in Macon at 10:50.

At the depot a large committee of Macon's prominent business men met them and extended to them the freedom of the city.

In their enthusiastic hospitality, some members of the committee tore down a panel of the park fence, and as the crowd got off the train, Mr. George A. Smith, the jolly ex-superintendent of Grace chapel Sunday school, raised a shout and called out to the crowd to follow, and they filed into the park, where the refreshing shade of the grand old trees and the fool green grass were so welcome to the eye. and they filed into the park, where the redreshing shade of the grand old trees and the

Messrs, Kay and Hanson had several huge barrels of le nonade ready in the dining hall, and Mr. George A. Smith had a hundred palmetto fans for the use of the visitors.
When the crowd reached the pavilion, Mr.
Rke Flatan arose and introduced Mr. John R.

for dinner arrived did he cease to keep the crowd in a pleasant humor.

The dinner was something to be remembered for many days. After all the tables had been piled up with food there were still many boxes and baskets untouched. The Macon people were cordially invited, and many of them joined in the dinner.

Among the visitors were Mayor Purifoy, Captain and Mrs. William Preston, Colonel and Mrs. Penn, of the Jasper County News, Judge Smith, one of Monticello's oldest and most respected citizens, Major Key, W. F. Dumas, the poet, Mr. and Mrs. Clements, Rev. O. A. Thrower, Mrs. Grover and daughters, Misses tannie Jordan and Annie White, and many fothers. After dinner was over Mr. George Smith capped the climax of his generosity by bringing in a large chest of ice cream cakes and distributing them to the crowd.

For some time the people dispersed themselves about the grounds, and then at 2 p. m. the procession formed, headed by a brass band, and marched up to the point where ten street cars were stationed, and there the jolly party boarded the cars, and under the skillful management of Superintendent John T. Woss, were safely piloted around the city.

The visitors were profuse in their expressions of gratitude and appreciation of the effects of Macon to make them happy.

Nobody enjoyed the day more than Colonel Frobel, and Messrs. Craig and Chalncey Palmer. All three of these gentlemen, of the Covington and Macon railroad, did all in their power to make the guests feel at home.

At four o'clock the party boarded the cars for Monticello, after having spent a day of solid enjoyment in Macon. This is only a prelude to the big holiday that is to be celebrated on July 21st, when Monticello is expected to close up the doors and come to Macon in a body.

THE WILLIAMS CASE.

The Case Gone to the Jury—A Big Array of Witnesses, Etc.

The case of state against N. M. Williams, who, it is claimed, made away with about two thousand dollars of the county and state's anoney in 1872, has just ended.

It appeared from the testimony that Williams in 1870, was elected tax collector of Jasper county, and that he indulged in the playing of cards and lost heavily, and other misappropriations caused Williams to be deficit near the amount above stated.

Williams claimed that he did not play cards mear the amount above stated.

Williams claimed that he did not play cards, for did he in any way misappropriate any moneys belonging to the county but that the money was not paid; that some of it was paid to authorized bailiffs, who never returned the money to him, and that therefore it was not his fault; that there was a deficit, but it was the fault of the bailiffs and the people who failed to pay their taxes.

The case was called on Tuesday evening, and pecupied the court all day yesterday, and today up to four o'clock when it was given to the jury.

There was three hundred and fifty witnesses summoned for the defence, but only four out of that number were present.

The state subpensed about twenty-five and

The jury retired at 4 o'clock this p.m., and remained out until 8 o'clock, when they were carried to the hotel and given supper, and then conducted back to their room again, and remained until 10 o'clock, when they sent word to the courthouse that they had made a verdict

The jury was called at 10:10, and rendered a verdict of guilty. The defendant's counsel gave notice that they would move for a new trial at once.

The court then sentenced Williams to five

The court then sentenced Williams to five years in the penitentiary.

The case will be argued some time in July for a new trial, and the defendant's bail was fixed at $2,000 until that time. He was carried to jail tonight, but efforts will be made to give the bail tomorrow.

The history of the crime was once familiar to pur readers, but it has been so long since it happened until it has almost been forgotten.

The true bill by the grand jury was found in 1873, and the defendant arrested, gave bond for his appearance at superior court, when Judge Bartlett was on the bench. The bond was forfeited, the defendant going to Alabama, where he remained for six years. He then came back, and the case has been continued by the defendant save one time. Colonel Robert Whitfield, the present solicitor general, became connected with the case in 1887, and has urged a trial ever since, and it is with great pleasare your correspondent announces that Colonel Whitfield has done some fine work in this case at the trial, and one might say it is only flue to his efforts that the ends of justice was not defeated. He is, however, well known as one of the best solicitor generals in the state, and on yesterday he held the restless audience spell bound for one hour and thirty minutes fluring the time he was delivering his speech in the Williams case. He is receiving much praise, and rightfully so, for the way in which he managed the case. Colonel Jordon also deserves mention, who was connected with Mr. Whitfield for the state.

The defendant was represented by Colonels Anderson and McKibben, of Jackson, who did everything for their client that could possibly be done.

The charge delivered in this case by Judge

Anderson and McKibben, of Jackson, who alid everything for their client that could possibly be done.

The charge delivered in this case by Judge Jenkins was pronounced perfect, and the attorneys for the defendant said to your correspondent last night, that they had no exceptions to make to the charge. All in all it is the biggest case that has been in Jasper county in a long long time and very probable many of the little boys of Jasper will never witness such a case again.

The prisoner has a large family and has the sympathy of the community.

Court then adjourned to the regular term in October.

CONDUCTOR MITCHELL KILLED. An Accident Near Box Spring on the South western Railroad.

Macon, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—This afternoon news was received in this city of the tragic death of A. W. Mitchell, conductor on freight train No. 35, one mile east of Box Spring, on the Columbus division of the South-freight traiu No. 35, one mile east of Box Spring, on the Columbus division of the Southwestern railroad.

The dispatch stated that the cab jumped the track and Mr. Mitchell was killed by the cab turning over and falling on him. It is supposed that he jumped when he saw it had left the track, and got caught by the car. Only the front wheels of another car left the track and no one esle was injured. It looks like Mr. Mitchell was destined to this fate. In October, 1885, he was running as an engineer on a passenger train, and near Stewart's crossing on the Eufaula and Montgomery division, a plece of a bar of iron was hurled through the cab window, and knocked him senseless, and it was only by hard work, that he was saved. His vision was impaired by the loss of one eye and the injury of the other in this accident, so that he was unable to resume work. Last September the authorities, who esteemed him very highly, put him on as a freight conductor, and on January 1, he was in the accident at Everett's station, and had another escape. It is said that he was also injured at another time on the Macon and Western. He was liked by all who knew him in Macon. and was a fine railroad man. He leaves a wife and several children here. A train was sent down for his remains, which will arrive here at four o'clock.

FEDERAL COURT.

A Big Fight on a New England Mortgage Case.

Riley & Davis for the defense and Duncan & Miller for the complainants.

The defense alleged that the amount claimed, two thousand five hundred dollars, had all gone to pay the debts of the lady's husband, and she had had none of the benefit of it. Further, it was charged that Duncan & Miller had retained five hundred dollars as their percentage, and had then foreclosed the mortgage it may very in one year.

This, they claimed, was usury, and on that line the defense set up a strong plea. After the argument closed the court adjourned until tomorrow without charging the jury.

It is not improbable that the case will be decided in favor of the defendant, as it is thought that they have a very strong case.

BONDS OF AMERICUS.

The Thirty Thousand Dollar Water Works

Bonds Nearly Ready.

Macon, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—The city of Americus, having decided to construct a system of water works, some time ago, voted to issue thirty thousand dollars of bonds to become due in fifteen years. Every other year four thousand dollars is to become due, the last four thousand becoming due on the last of the fifteen years. These bonds are nearly ready now, and will be put on the market at an early day.

Before issuing the bonds the city was entirely out of debt, and this makes these new bonds safe and desirable investments.

corder's court today Bill Colson, the desperate negro who assaulted Policemen Brooks and Follindore, yesterday, was stuck pretty heavily. He was sentenced to fifty days in the chaingang, ten days in the barracks and fifteen dollars fine.

The officers thought that they might possibly be able to establish his identity as an escaped murderer, for whom a reward was offered. It was thought that he was the same who murdered a sheriff in some of the eastern counties of the state, but the fact was not developed today.

The beautiful five-year-olds were harnessed to a handsome surrey, and the party were delighted by a drive through the park and a spin around the mile track. Then their heads were turned towards the hill, and the party took in the aristocratic residence portion of town, much to their enjoyment. The ride was pronounced a great treat and the fillies were voted superb.

Madison's Military.

Madison, June 24.—[Special.]—Madison is now on a fair way to have one of the crack military companies of the state; our boys are full of enthusiasm and military spirit. Captain McHenry is doing all in his power to make it a pride to the town. Last night an election was held for commissioned officers and resulted in Mr. J. E. Godfrey being elected first lieutenant, with Mr. R. N. Thomason second lieutenant. Each will make a splendid officer. They were elected by handsome majorities; forty-three votes were polled.

BLUE RIBBONS, BOQUETS AND ESSAYS.

How the Pupils Stood Their Exami Programme of Exercises at the Different Institutions.

SHELLMAN, Ga.. June 24.-[Special.]--For several weeks past the citizens of Shellman and patrons of the institute have been looking forward to the past weeks exercises with antiforward to the past weeks exercises with annu-ipating much pleasure. Indeed they have realized their most sanguine expectations. Sunday morning, long before the hour for the services to begin, an immense crowd was gathered in the college chapel. By eleven, the large chapel was filled to its utmost capacity. As the preacher, Rev. G. W. Mathews, ascendod the rostrum, a deathly silence rested be-tween the grand old walls of the institute, which was broken only by the song by the choir, "Rocks of Ages cleft for me," which was beautifully rendered.

The large crowd sat spell-bound for full an hour listening to the impressive and eloquent hour listening to the impressive and eloquent words of this eminent divine. His theme was practical, his sermon beautiful. Mr. Entzminpractical, his serimon beautiful. Arr. Entzminger closed the services with an impressive and fervent prayer. In the afternoon the large number of visitors assembled at the Methodist church to witness the Sunday school exercises. At night the same attended the prayer meeting.

Monday morning the primary classes stood a holdsy included the primary classes stood a very creditable examination, embracing all they had been over during the year. Miss Eliza Janes, the teacher of this department, was delighted as well as every patron, with the gratifying results of her labors. She certainly demonstrated the fact, that as a skillful teacher, she was resteet.

monstrated the fact, that as a skillful teacher, she was perfect.

At 11 o'clock Colonel R. F. Crittenden was called upon to make a speech.

In his usual pleasant and agreeable manner he entertained the audience for near an hour. His remarks concerning the poor health of our beloved music teacher, Miss Nannie Coby, were pathetic and awakened the sympathy of all present. She has a throat affection, caused from singing too much, as declared by her physician. Many fear that she will be unable to occupy her place in the faculty another year. She is an excellent performer, an estimable lady and has no equal as a vocalist in south Georgia. She has been partially blind from infancy, but teaches music with entire success.

Monday night an entertainment was given Monday night an entertainment was given by the primary students, which was enjoyed by every one. An injustice would certainly be done if special mention was made of any one of the class. We will say for the benefit of the institute and to the credit of the pupils, that we never heard children so small recite so nieely or do so well in music and charades. The elocution medal in this class was shared by Lillian Crittenden and Willie Grubbs.

Thursday morning the examination of the collegiate class was commenced. This examination was all that could be desired by tutor or patron.
At 10:30 o'clock Mr. J. LeGrand Easterling At 10:30 o'clock Mr. J. LeGrand Easterling was introduced, and he delivered some excellent argument on "Woman Suffrage." Mr. Easterling is a student of Wofford college, Spartanburg, S. C. He made the speech liere that he made before the Calhoun society, thereby winning the medal given by the society. He reflected much credit upon his college and made a lasting "mark" on the ladies who heard him.

and made a lasting "mark" on the ladies who heard him.

Mr. Easterling has lived here and Shellman will ever feel proud of him. Tuesday night a concert was given by the music class interspersed by sophomore declamations. Again we must abstain from making any personal mention. We will say, however, that the dialogue, "One of You Must Marry," and the song, "The Jolliest Girls in Town," were rendered with good effect.

Wednesday morning the the large crowd which had been attending previous exercises, was swelled by large numbers who had come to hear the literary address and the senior essays.

They all did exceedingly well and the judges had much trouble, deciding to whom the medal belonged. Wednesday night was the closing scene of

The juniors contested for the elocution were prevalent as to who had received the Massie Crittenden and May Cox and Charlie

"Lady Andley's Secret," was well played required to do this.

Young Female College. Thomasville, June 24.—[Special.]—The concert Wednesday night concluded the closing exercises of the eighteenth commencement of Young Female college. As at every preceding commencement of this popular institution of learning, the large hall of the chapel ment of Young Female college. As at every preceding commencement of this popular institution of learning, the large hall of the chapel was packed to its utmost capacity and the good order observed attested the appreciation of the audience. The essays of the graduating class were unusually good. Space forbids my criticising each one in this correspondence, but they were criticised by a very select and highly cultivated audience, who pronounced the programme very varied and interesting. The subjects of the young ladies were admirably chosen and all were handled in a skillful manner, and brought forth hearty applause. At the conclusion of the reading the "salutatory" and "Class History" by Miss May Ainsworth, as also the valedictory and essay of Miss Stella Baker, were as good compositions as were ever heard at a female college commencement. All of the girls showed unusually good sense in not having their essays too long. As a result, the attention of the audience did not fag toward the end, but the valedictorian can congratulate herself on having received as much attention and appreciations as the first young lady who appeared on the stage. The calisthenic marches by the younger pupils was, as usual, a very interesting feature of the exercises. The concert last night was a great attraction. Miss Mary Fridley, who has charge of the music department of the college, has not a superior as a music teacher in the south. Under her direction and training the music scholars gave a most excellent concert, which reflected great credit upon the accomplished young artist by whom they have been taught. The closing exercises of Young's Female college, 1887, ends the eighteenth year of Professor Baker's connection with that institution. Mr. Baker was chosen principal when the college was founded, and during his long connection with it has given universal satisfaction to both trustees and patrons, and made the institution one of which south Georgia is justly proud. It today stands a monument to his good management, and stamps him not but the most inflowed recollections will ever be cherished by both faculty and scholars. The young ladies may congratulate themselves on being able to enter upon the sphere of womanhood well equipped for the duties for which both they and their teachers have labor-ed so industriously to prepare them.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 24—[Epecial.]—A fracas occurred at Whiteley's bar, in upper Broad street, one of the lowest dens in the city, this morning which will probably result in the death of one of the participants. The facts of the case are these:

Jim Daly, a frequenter of the place, was sitting at the table in the bar, when Jim Fisher, a convict guard, entered, took a drink and walked to where Daly was sitting and slapped him. Daly arose and invited Fisher to a rear room to settle the difficulty in a fist-cuff. After one or two rounds were fought and Fisher was badly used up, the fight was declared by bystanders in favor of Daly. Fisher sneaked off from the crowd, secured a brick and hurled it at Daly, striking him over the left eye and fracturing his skull. Fisher was arrested and Daly carried to the hospital where he now lies, in a critical condition. Both parties were drunk.

A Little Buena Vista Boy Choked Nearly to Death.

Buena Vista, Ga., June 24.—[Special.]—
Last Tuesday as a crowd of small boys were playing out on the edge of town, it occurred to them that they would have a "hanging."
They selected as their subject one of their companions, a ten-year-old son of Dr. W. B. Hair. They adjusted the rope, give him a few minutes to make his last remarks, then hoisted him. When they thought he had been up long enough they let him down gently, but the rope had tightened around the little fellow's neck in such a manner that it was difficult to untie it, and he came very near being strangled to death before they were able to release him. He is all right now, but he won't attend the next hanging the boys have.

J. J. Flynn, General Eastern Agent, 23 Park Row, New York City. ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 25, 1887.

It Is Men as Well as Money.

The Chattanooga Times, our irritable contemporary, is not disposed to agree with THE CONSTITUTION about the development of southern resources, which is now attracting such wide attention. The Times says:

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION ought to know that THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION ought to know that the management and ownership of capital in rail-roads and manufactories are not generally in the same person. That paper makes a brave show of southern heads and hands in the direction of southern roads, mines, furnaces and factories. Still, it is only fair to say that more than three-fifths of the money for the roads and manufacturing plants came from the north and England; it is sheer buncombe to pretend otherwise. to pretend otherwise

Of course it is very largely northern money that has built up the south, but it is even more largely southern brains and enterprise. At the close of the war there was literally no money in the south. Truly did the southern woman speak who said to a northern visitor who praised our "balmy air and genial sunshine:" "I am glad you like it, for it's about all the war has left us." At that day, and even later, when the editor of the Times came south, we were depending on the west for meat and bread and hay and mules and horses, and on the north for our clothing, furniture and for almost every article of use. Our barns and smokehouses were in Iowa, our shops and factories in Massachusetts, and our banks in New York and Boston.

Still the south has been piling up money right smartly for the past twenty years. We have been getting annually from $350,000,-000 to $400,000,000 for our cotton crop, and every year have been keeping more and more of this money at home. tiplying mills and factories and shops that give us at home the clothing, carriages, furniture, plows, gins, engines, brooms, stoves, and the thousand and one articles we formerly bought of the north. Granaries and hayricks dot thousands of farms, and the pigsty, the barnyard, the compost heap are familiar features, and grass carpets former wastes of field or forest. Not only are we keeping at home a yearly increasing amount of the enormous revenue from our cotton, out our mines, quarries and mills are daily drawing from northern markets a springing tide of cash.

We repeat that the development of the south has been mainly engineered by southern brains and energy, drawing hither northern money for its assured and tempting cent per cent. The future will show the south daily richer and more independent. When we learn the lesson of keeping at ome for five years the $400,000,000 we receive from our cotton crop, which we should do at once, the south will be the richest section of this country, and one of the richest ections of the globe.

The Flags and the States It will be interesting to note the effect of Mr. Davis's suggestion with respect to the ured flags. Mr. Davis suggests that the order of the war department to return the captured flags of the late Confederate States was a violation of all known military precedents. The regular army of the federal overnment during the war amounted to only twenty-six regiments. The remaining regiments were volunteer soldiers raised under the auspices of the state governments and therefore state troops.

Mr. Davis is of the opinion that the flags captured by the state troops belong to the state governments, while only those captured by the regular troops belong to the federal government.

It was Mr. Lincoln who said during the war that but for the state organizationsbut for the troops raised under state auspices-the north, even with all its great reources, would have found great difficulty in prosecuting the war. Under all the circumstances. Mr. Davis's remarks are the very essence of common sense.

It is worthy of note, too, that Mr. Davis persists in the belief that the states are big

Looking for a Remedy.

Last Saturday eighty-three applications for divorce were heard in Chicago. That city has for years been the refuge of those who sought easy relief from matrimonial obligations. Ordinarily a divorce occasions no more comment there than does a regular suit at common law .. Still the great rush of last Saturday was discussed considerably. because it broke the record of the number of cases for one day, just as the record was broken in Atlanta last Thursday by the granting of twenty divorces in one day.

The rapid increase in the number of divorces in all parts of the United States, and the apparent facility with which they are obtained in nearly all the states are subjects for most serious consideration. In some states the grounds for divorce are many and various; some of them comparatively insignifieant. In other states there are no statutory grounds, but the whole matter is left to the discretion of the judge. South Carolina alone has no divorce laws. Uniformity of state legislation on this question has often been suggested, but no practical steps in that direction have been taken. So long as there is scattered throughout the union a few states with lax divorce laws, careless ly administered, it will be comparative easy for those who desire to disrupt the matrinial relation for trivial reasons to have their wishes gratified. Uniform laws, strict ly limiting the right of divorce, would unabtedly produce a healthy reform

The churches are taking hold of this matter in the proper spirit. They are doing much to discourage divorces, and their de clarations cannot fail of a healthful effect on society. The conservative power of the Catholic church by reason of its unflinching attitude against divorce has doubtless been a great blessing to the world. At the recent general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church there were discussions which showed that the tendency of that great church is toward a more decided discouragement of divorce. But, while the churches in their organic capacity are uniformly moving on the line of restriction a just complaint is lodged against the clergy for their carelessness in connection with marriages. In almost any city of the United States it is possible for a man and woman to find a preachar who will make them man and wife though he may never have seen either of them before. A large per cent of the suits for divorce are traceable to hasty and illconsidered marriages. A clergyman should be exceedingly careful in the exercise of his function as a marriage-maker. Whether there shall be any legal enactment to restrict divorce or not, the moral forces of society seem to be aroused against the abuse of this right in a way which must eventually be felt am ong all classes.

HALSTEAD and his gang have another reason for howling. The union soldiers of the Philadelphia brigade are anxious to return to the survivors of Pickett's division the flags captured at Gettysburg. This is certainly a renewal of the rebellion.

A Trip to the North Pole.

We have received a very interesting circular letter from Dr. A. De Bausset, 236 State street, Chicago, Illinois, The doctor informs us that on the first of June, 1888, he intends starting on a voyage of discovery to the North pole and Arctic regions, traveling in his new air-ship. He says that his air ship will be capable of carrying two hundred passengers, and he estimates that a month's time will suffice for the voyage to and from the pole, allowing two weeks for scientific observation of arctic phenomena. The doctor spells phenomena with a big P, but we believe that this is a totally unne cessary tribute to unknown forces.

Among his two hundred passengers, Dr. Bausset hopes to number, besides representatives to the press, a great many "accom plished observers and operators in such branches of science as astronomy, geodesey, hydrostatics, hygnometry, photography, etc., with such instruments and apparatus as they may wish to carry."

The genial doctor says that it is quite unnecessary for him to enlarge on the great advantage which his proposed trip offers to students of the earth's phenomena. Dr. Bausset declares that he well knows that even to men of scientific attainments his project may appear to be the dream of a visionary; but he declares that he is prepared to demonstrate not only theoretically, but by actual trial, to the satisfaction of the most critical that he has made discoveries in ærial navigation which render his proposed trip a matter of safe and successful ccomplishment.

The doctor then goes on to say that he has invented or discovered devices for navigating the air by means of a vacuum instead of by inflation with hydrogen. As he describes his air-ship, it is composed of a cylinder built of thin plates of steel, and to this cylinder a car for passengers, freight and machinery is rigidly attached. For ascensional force he departs from the old methods, and uses, instead of gas, a partial vacuum. Dr. De Bausset does not enter into the de tails of the construction of his aeroplane, but he says that a partial vacuum, varying and averaging from one-half to three-fourths of exhaustion, gives ample buoyancy for lifting the cylinder and its car. To this the doctor adds the following paragraph:

This vacuum and consequently the vertical move-ments of the aeroplane are regulated by means of air valves on the one hand, by which the vacuum may be decreased at will. and on the other by four powerful pneumatic pumps driven by storage batte-ries and electric moters, by whose agency the vo-cuum may at any time be increased. Horizontal motion, which is a very good thing in its way, he secures by the use of eight compound exhausting air screw propellers, which displace and throw upon the surrounding atmosphere 300,000 cubic feet of air ute, an energy sufficient to impart to the acroplane a mean velocity of seventy miles an hour, The doctot says that if there is anything impractical or visionary in this plan he would be glad to have it pointed out, and he invites inquiry and correspondence. To complete the building of his aeroplane the doctor needs money, and he trusts that his circular letter will meet the eye of some wealthy person who is willing to win fame for himself and at the same time confer a blessing on the human race by becoming a patron of the air-ship.

It is announced that the starting point of the air-ship will be New York city, and the route will be as follows: from New York to Philadelphia, Washington, Toledo, Chicago, Omaha, San Francisco, Yeddo, Japan; Canton or Pekin, China; Constantinople, Turkey; Rome, Italia; Paris, France; Ber lin, Germany; Copenhagan, Denmark; Stockholm, Sweden; and St. Petersburg, Russia; from this last city directly via Greenland to the Arctic regions. This is a very fine scheme indeed, but we take pleasure in informing the doctor that an air-ship that doesn't touch at Atlanta has little chance of reaching the north pole. This is shown by the fact that no balloon or airship has ever reached the pole that failed to touch at Atlanta. There ought to be considerable sufficement in a word to the wise.

A NUMBER of leading democrats have gathered at Washington to discuss the situation. The necessity for such a discussion disappeared with the racket kicked up by the republicans over the captured flags. The south is solid for another season, and the leading democrats may return to the bosoms of their respective families.

A Valuable Life.

Presidents die, and the republic keeps onward in its course without jolt or jar. A great light in the pulpit goes out, and the Christian world is hardly rippled.

The deaths of great soldiers, statesm and rulers cause no commotion. Such calamities are anticipated, and the success ors of the dead men quietly step in and fill their places. 314

But some lives are so valuable that the world cannot afford to lose them. Yester-day it was rumored in Wall street that Jay Gould was dead. A cyclone could not have dentity of the same been half as disastrous. An earthquake would have been a mere trifle.

Jay Gould dead! The tidings flew like wildfire. Rich men rushed frantically in every direction with protruding eyes and livid lips. There was an instantaneous crash in stocks. The most promising investments tumbled from booming figures down to ruinous quotations. The big money lenders at once locked their coffers and refused to let a dollar go out. Downward, and still downward everything dropped until it seemed that a panic could not possibly be averted.

Then the reassuring news came that Jay Gould was alive and comparatively well. The fright subsided, stocks began to climb upward again, and Wall street, New York, and perhaps the entire country drew a breath of relief.

In all that crowd of terror stricken specu lators there was probably not one who really cared whether Jay Gould, the man, lived or died. But in Jay Gould, the possessor of $200,000,000, they felt the most absorbing

The young men who are growing up will not be slow to profit by the lesson involved in this incident. They will jump at once to the conclusion that the central figure in the affairs of this world is the man who is literally made of money. When a man counts his millions by hundreds, he cannot help being a positive force, if not the controlling power in the land.

The flurry of vesterday gives us a glimpse of another evil connected with these overgrown fortunes. We see that while it is a curse to the country to have such men live, it makes matters worse, for a time at least, when they die. Either way it is a smash or crash, and it is difficult to tell which i the better for us.

It is a very bad thing to have the business interests of this great country hanging upon such a thread as the life of one man

New York has a way of grassing of the limit at. t has a way of grasping at all the honors, but is sometimes negligent of the responsibili-ties they incur. The Late Bishop Pierce.

Senator Colquitt, in delivering the medals to the successful sophomore declaimers at Emory college last Tuesday, paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of the lamantal Bishop George F. Pierce, Senator. of the lamented Bishop George F. Fierce.

Colquitt said:

"When we speak of orators and oratory we are accustomed to cital as examples Demosthenes or Cicero.

Let it not be charged that I speak from an invidious and narrow partiality when I declare that among the illustrious men who were born and reared on Georgia soil, we may find some of the highest examples of the power of human speech. The elders of this audience may recall the faces, the bearing and the stirring words of many of these noble characters. How naturally do we, who for years back have frequented these halls, look around to see the familiar faces of some of those noble and gifted men. What a roll of honor it would, by universal acclaim, be acknowledged if we were now to call it. We call acknowledged if we were now to call it. We call that roll in veneration, love and admiration, but we call it only in memory and in silence.

As I stood by, giving a telegram to the young roman employed as operator in one of the grea notels at a noted summer resort, I wondered what oust be the state of mind of this class of worke little ticking machine, waiting my turn to be served the proprietor came up and wrote on a blank the following legend which the patient operator read aloud very carefully and distinctly: "There is no goats in M." No smile stole over her impassive countenance. She showed no sign of curiosity to know the sequel or preface to this quaint message. She made no corrections of grammar, but simply ticked off the letters contained in the six words. Whether that perfect self-control was the result of long schooling or the indifference born of knowing a little of everybody's business who sent a message over the wire, I know not. I could but admire her self-control while I wondered still what could be the objection to such innocent, inoffensive animals as goats. My curiosity was rewarded the next day when there arrived a crate containing the familiar form of a nannie goat, looking for all the world like every other goat of her sex, very bewildered and awkward and not very happy at being trans ported to this goatless town. General Early goes on to say: "I was shown the original letter, and from the closing sentence in it, as compared with Rosser's recent utterances, a discerning public can estimate how much importance should be attached to an opinion of his on any subject. He now thinks his 'noble friend' ought to have been hung for the burning of Chambersburg, Really, what Rosser thinks or says in regard to myself disturbs me very little. What actually di "That handsoms man over there?"
"Yes; the brute!"
"Brute! I should say he was a brute. He didn't me is to see one who occupied the position of a general officer in the confederate army fall as low as he has fallen. It seems that a residence of several years in the northwest and the accumulation of considerable property there by means best known to self has had the effect of convincing him that the south was all wrong in the struggle she made for independence and self-govern and that it was fortunate that his efforts for four years in her cause failed of su cess to those true and faithful confederates who, like myself, feel fortified when one of our former comrades becomes a renegade to the cause we fought for. I have this consolation to offer: We do not stand alone in having apostates from our ranks. We learn that even one of the brightest of the archangels-the son of the morning'-who stood around the throne of the Almighty, rebelled against his Creator, and carried off a number of the angels into the rebellion. And one of the chosen apostles of the Savior of mankind betrayed his master with a kiss for forty pieces of silver. This much, however, is to be said in behalf of Judas Iscariot: When he became aware of the effect of his treachery he had the grace to cast from him the thirty pieces of silver, the price of his treachery, and go and hang himself. If some of our re would go and do likewise we might regard the act as some atonement for their apostasy, and the most creditable act they could now perform. I have heard it suggested that Roser asbires to be the member of congress from which some lower valley counties constitute the greater parts, and that his recent letter about the rumored intention of Sheridan to ride up the valley was intended to aid his aspirations in that respect."

No Intimidation.

From the Detroit Free Press. There was a country constable in town yesterday in search of a fugitive from justice. The fogitive was a boy who was very lame in one leg and who had lost three fingers from one hand. The officer called at various places in his search, and at the Third street depot was inventoried by some of the hackmen. That proceeding disclosed the

One constable's star,
One warrant for a small boy.
"Is he dangerous?" querried one of the hackmen in speaking of the fugitive.
"I don't know as to that," replied the officer:
"but here is the point. Suppose I arrest that boy on the street, and after I've got him shackled and to take him away. D'ye suppose I've come in here

A Dog That Loved Good Society. From the London Daily News.

There is a legend of a dog who lived in the country and who always left his master's house when any of his neighbors had distinguished guests to stay with them. He invited himself i join them, acting on Thackeray's principle that you wish to be asked to a party there is nothing Hke asking to be asked. The instance of this dog may be considered adverse to our theory that beasts are incapable of conscious happiness. That the dog. If may plausibly be urged, would have been wretched in his mind had he dined at home, where there was only the family, when he knew well that a party had been asked to the neighboring castle to meet a distinguished person. But this hound must be considered an exception, like the celebrated dancing dog of Theophile Gautier. This dog once saw a performing beast of his own species at a fair. The tricks and laurels of the performing dog did not permit him to sieep. M. Gautier missed him often, and one day found him practicing his steps by himself is mu empty room. When he thought himself perfect he had an "at home" and exhibited before the dogs of the neighborhood. in his mind had he dined at home, where there wat

In the Squaw Peak range, Arizona, is a cave which no prospector has the nerve to attempt to ex-plore, on account of it being guarded by a ghost. In of an Indian woman. In 1868 a party of whitef found the cave filled with Tonto Indian, whom they attacked and nurdered. Since then no one has had the courage to try to arter the course of the thing that sits in its door. Last week G Matthews and his partner, named McCloud, being in the range concluded to have a look at the Square cave, not having any faith in the stories told of it. The cave is situated under the highest butte Squaw Peak range. They found it and just took one look at the thitte sitting in its mouth. The Herald says: "Matthews declares there is not money enough in Maricopa county to pay him to ju there again, and his partner, McCloud, has not stopped running since—at least, he has not been seen since that time."

Victoria and Buffalo Bill.

The Pall Mall Gazette is bitter at the expense of Queen Victoria. For years, says an edio-rial article, her majesty has been a sort of "She" to the nation, surrounded with a halo mystery, whose existence was a matter of doubt to many of her subjects. The jubilee year was thought to be at atonement for long years of moody seclusion. Yet at the drawing-room on Tuesday "She" dodged ont at the drawing-room on Tuesday "She" dodged on of one of the back, doors of Buckingham palace and disappointed many thousands of people with had waited patiently for hours to catch a passing glimpse of hor face. CHILDREN'S DAY.

The Exercises and Ceremonies of Another School Year.

HONOR SCHOLARS OF THE SCHOOLS.

Interesting Exercises at All the Buildings-Large Numbers of People Visit the White and Colored Schools.

Yesterday was children's day in Atlanta, and the boys and girls of the public schools For weeks, "closing day" has been looked forward to with happy anticipation by the scholars, both large and small, and many an hour has been spent in preparation for the occasion. Closing Day was all that could be desired in respect to weather, and there was nothing to the pleasures of the examinations and exhibitions. The exercises at the different school buildings were largely attended and were heartily enjoyed by every person who was for-tunate enough to be able to spend the morning with the bright and happy children. The rooms of the various grades were, in most cases, filled with parents and friends of the children and the livellest interest was taken in the proceedings. Most of the members of the board of education were on hand, and Professor Slaton, superintendent of the schools, was the busiest man in the city. He visited every school room in Atlanta.

The uniformly successful exercises furnished a fitting close to a very successful school year.

The Fair Street School. This is one of the largest and best managed schools in the city. Professor E. G. Moore, the principal, is a veteran teacher. His whole iffe has been spent in teaching. He is an inflexible disciplinarian, and all the teachers and pupils under him are compelled to do their duty. The rooms were thronged yesterday pupils under him are compened to do their duty. The rooms were thronged yesterday morning from nine o'clock until nearly one. In addition to the regular examinations which were conducted orally by Professor Moore and his corps of assistants, there were attractive exercises, which consisted of music and recitations. During the school year, the rolls have contained the names of 590 children. The teachers under Professor Moore are: Sixth grade, Mrs. A. A. Smith; fifth grade, Miss Mary J. Ira Street Schools

Irn Street School.

This school possesses one of the finest buildings in Georgia. In size, appointments, conveniencies and all the other essentials of a model schoolhouse, it is unquestionably the superior of any other school building in Atlanta. Its situation is picturesque. On a commanding elevation it sixtudes like a mighty sentinel, and its impesing outlines can be seen for miles around. The structure is built of brick. Miss Nena Mitchell, the principal is an accomplished scholar and a rigid and consistent disciplinarian. She is generally conceded to be one of the most successful jeschers in the city. The examination was conducted orally by the principal and her assistants. The children evinced such proficiency and elegant deportment as must indeed be gratifying to their parents and their preceptors. The books show an enrollment of 268 children in the five grades. The past year this school has had only five grades, but fact session, two more grades will be added and two additional teachers will be employed. During the year just closed there have been three teachers in addition to the principal, who teaches in the highest grade. The others are Miss Lamar Wood, fourth and third grades; Mrs. S. R. S. Walsh, second grade; Miss George Parker, first grade. The exercises veterday morning were decidedly interesting lasting from 9 o'clock until after 12. The various recitation rooms were pretty well filled with visitors, most of whom were parents of the pupils. During the intervals between the examination of the classes, the younger children entertained the visitors with recitations, music, etc.

Walker Street School.

The attendance at this school from the open-The attendance at this school from the opening hour to the close was very large, and amounted at times to a jam. The exercises in the several rooms consisted of recitations intended to show the proficiency of the pupils in their studies, the various branches taught alternating rapidly. The building is an immense frame, and the fire drill, occurring several times a week throughout the session, is no mere fanciful novelty in the round of exercises. It was given yesterday, the children not knowing whether or not it was for show or for dear life. In excellent order and with equal celerity the pupils, nearly a thousand in number, vacated the building.

A woman who is weak, nervous and sleep-less, and who has cold hands and feet, cannot feel and act like a well person. Carter's Iron Pills equalize the circulation, remove nervous-ness and give strength and rest. A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband, but if she is weak and nervous and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so too!

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 24.—The stock market was subjected today to one of the heaviest drives ever known in its history, and although its duration was short, about one hour and a half, the depression caused in prices during that 'time was something unprecedented. The market early in the morning gave no indication of anything unusual. Prices were heavy and the same quiet business usual of late was transacted. Suddenly, shortly after 11 o'clock, the attack was begun, Gould stocks being particularly the object of attention. Manhattan was quickly marked down from 158½ to 115, Missouri Pacific from 105½ to 92, and Western Union from 75½ to 67½. Rumons were circulated at the same time of a disagreement between Messrs. Gould, Tield and Sage, and later this was followed by reports of the death of Mr. Gould. The money market was not neglected and rates were marked up to 5-16 and interest. A tremendous selling movement began, which soon became a panic, and fuctuations dropped in some cases 2 and 3 per cent at a time. The stories in regard to Mr. Gould soon met with a prompt denial by even professional bears, who were infinential in stopping the wild sales of securities. Other rumors which were set alloat were disproved and liberal buying some turned the tide of affairs. Free recovery followed in all except a few of the conspicuously weak stocks, among which Manhattan and Richmond and West Point were the most conspicuous. The specialties were not sharers to any great extent in the movement, which was confined to the leading speculative stocks. The opening was quiet and firm to strong, first prices generally showing advances of from ½ to % per cent over yesterday's closing faires. Gould stocks were noticeably heavy, although their declines for the first hour were confined to less than 1 per cent, while the remainder of the market was irregular with narrow fluctuations. When the great drive was made everything gave way with a rush, sales for the succeeding hour being something enormous, about 30,000 shares. The worst of the decline was seen by noon, but the recovery was not fairly under way before 1 p. m., when the market again subsided into midsummer duliness. There was more trading later, however, and the market fluctuated frequently, the general tendency, however, being upward. At the close it was still unsetted but generally firm. The total business for the day was the largest for any day so far this year, amounting to 667,000 shares. The entire active list is lower, and Manhattan is down 21½ per cent; Denver preferred, 2½; Richmond and West Point and Northwestern, 2½; Richmond and West Point and Northwestern, 2½; Richmond and others fractional amounts.

Wall street was puzzled to account for the fact 114: Reading, 114: Wheeling and Lake Erre 2, and others fractional amounts.

Wall street was puzzled to account for the fact that such a great decline could occur without dragging down some of the bull houses which have been carrying large lines of stocks, but this was explained by reports that Gould, Field, Vanderbilt, and Philadelphia capitalists, had taken up the stock which was it, weak hands, and relieved holders of the present of sagrificing these.

ssity of sacrificing them. Cyrus W. Field, one report said, had taken up $7,000,000 of Manhattan stock. Field and George Gould deny the correctness of the reports that there has been any disagreement between Gould, Field and Sage.

Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: The tendency of the contract market has been somewhat steadier, and on opening gained 7@9 points for near options. Liverpool came somewhat better, and this in con junction with a freer movement of spots on home account, inspired a buoyancy. The gain, however, could not be sustained in the face of the condition of affairs in Wall street, and during the latter portion of the day the feeling was comparatively easy and nervous. The new crop followed the fluctua-tions of the old, but was not so freely offered.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce. Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, June 24-A bearish feeling prevailed at the opening of the board and July wheat, which opened at 70% to 70%, immediately sold down to 70%, and contuined to sag during most of the first hour. The weakness was mainly due to English markets, which were 2 pence lower and a general feeling of uncertainty, which prevailed, July sold down to 70½c. The heavy break and subsequent panic in the New York stock market caused quite an uneasy feeling in wheat here for a time, and this, coupled with the causes mentioned above, resulted in breaking July wheat off to 69% during the morning. While the furor was on a majority of the traders in wheat were quietly selling or trying to sell, and when it was found later on that no one was badly hurt in the general shaking up at New York, confidence was restored and the crowd found York, confidence was restored and the crowd found itself largely short. Buying to cover these contracts caused a reaction in wheat and July recovered its lost ground and advanced to 70½c. After the evening-up process had been completed, July got back to its old station around 70 cents and became quite steady, closing at 70%c.

Corn was quiet and trading was limited to local operators and the feeling was easier, and values ruled lower, influenced somewhat by the decline in wheat. The decline in stocks in New York also has a tendency to create uneasi rading was mainly in the way of changing July to the more deferred deliveries at the ruling premium. Receipts continue limited, and estimated arrivals for tomorrow are light. July opened unchanged at 36%c, sold down to 38%c and closed at 36%c.

A steady feeling prevailed in oats, as compared with yesterday's closing. Deferred deliveries showed about &c improvement. July delivery was also about 1/4c improvement. July delivery was also slightly firmer. The volume of business was rather light, and deferred deliveries are attracting the most attention. Arrivals are still very moderate.

Not much inclination was manifested to trade in provisions, and a comparatively steady feeling pre-vailed. There was no particular pressure to sell, in view of the steadiness in the hog market fand con-tinued liberal shipments of all kinds of products, tinued liberal shipments of all kinds of products, while there was very little speculative inquiry. Fluctuations in prices showed no particular change. Trading was almost exclusively in lard and short ribs for August delivery and September delivery. Receipts of products were fair. July ribs opened at 7.30, sold down to 7.22% and closed at 7.35. July lard started at 6.37% and sold down to 6.35—the closed at 7.50.

"Summer Fancies" was sung by the class. Major Slaton introduced Judge Howard Van Epps, who made one of his characteristic speeches. The address was very brief, not exceeding more than thirty minutes in its delivery. It was well received and the orator got his share of applause.

Senator Joseph E. Brown, as chairman of the board of education, presented the diplomas to the graduates. In domg so he refrained from making a speech, on account of the lateness of the hour. The floral gifts were the most liberal and elaborate ever known before on any like occasion.

A MOMENTOUS MEETING.

Some Important Matters to be Decided by the School Board.

The board of education will have the most important meeting of the year today. The meeting will take place this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in Superintendent Slaton's office.

Two significant matters will be settled. First, whether or not a lady shall be elected principal of the grammar schools. The unoroken rule has been against this. The principal of each grammar school is a man, though ladies hold offices under him up to the highest trade. Mrs. Echols has been acting as principal of the Calhoun street school which was not a full school. It has now been made a full grade, and a principal is to

THE ENTERTAINMENT LAST NIGHT

Two Thousand People Fill DeGive's Opera house and Nearly a Thousand Others Turned Away.

Last night DeGive's opera house contained such an audience as it has never held before. The assemblage was notable in many respects.

It numbered fully 2,000 people, the best and most cultivated people in the city, a large pro-portion of whom was white. Not only were seats in the parquet and dress circle all taken, but every foot of space in the galleries was filled. Long before the doors were opened people began congregating in front of the opera house. Many of them were weighted down with baskets of flowers and fruit, love offering for the fair young graduates. As soon as the doors were flung open the stream of humanity

The stage had been dressed tastefully and there was an opulence of flowers and evergreens placed in attractive disorder. The fortythree young ladies of the graduating class occupied seats in a semi-circle and behind them set the members of the board of education and Judge Howard Van Epps, the orator of the seesien.

If the occasion.

Major Slaton, the master of ceremonies, tated to the audience that the sproceedings rould be opened with prayer by Dr. H. C. forrison, paster of the First Methodist church.

This eloquent preacher's invocation was fer-vent, elegant in diction and appropriate to the cocasion.

The curtain was rung down and there was a short intermission, during which the young ladies were arranging for the calisthenic exhibition and fan drill. When the curtain went up there was disclosed to the admiring gaze of the yast throng of visitors a brilliant and unique spectacle. Forty-two winsome young women, dressed in immaculate white, with bunches of flowers at their throats and each one holding in her hand a gorgeously colored fan, were drawn in line after the manner of regular soldiers. In quick obedience to the director's baton they marched off. Their movements were the very poetry of motion.

be elected. Mrs. Echols's friends urge that her efficiency and success entitle her to the place. Those who oppose her, granting her admirrable system, hold that it is a man's place and should be filled by a man. The chances are that this latter view will prevail and that Mr. J. C. Harris, of Marietta, will be elected principal of the Calhoun-street school.

The next question is whether colored teachers shall be put in charge of the colored schools. The chances are they will not. Commissioner Glenn said on this subject:

"I am perfectly willing for colored teachers to have the colored schools, but the colored schools in Atlanta have been served faithfully by white ladies, all of whom, except one, are southern born. I am not willing to see them turned off without notice. I believe that the policy of colored teachers for colored schools may be a correct one, and I am willing to compromise by giving the present teachers a notice of a year or so, and at that time filling their places with colored people."

It is likely that this view will prevail. The vote as taken at the board last meeting shows a large majority against displacing the present teachers. Since that time the colored people have become very active in the matter, and have made up immense petitions which will be laid before the board. The chances are that the colored teachers will have to wait.

Orders were given not to admit any others, as the building was crowded to its utmost capacity. Still the crowd pressed toward the door and sought an entrance. It is estimated that at least a thousand people were turned away.

While the ushers were providing seats for the auditors, the orchestra rendered an overture.

THE PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

Celebrates Its Closing Day By An Interesting Exhibition.

The young girls, pupils of SS. Peter and Paul's parochial school, gave their closing exhibition yesterday. The examinations began on Thursday, and the pupils reflected credit upon their instructors and honor upon themselves. The girls especially did well in orthography, geography, history and music. There are half a hundred girls in attendance, and over seventy-five boys, The Sisters of Mercy have the school in their care, and manage every feature of it. The display of fancy work was large and creditable, and the whole exercises reflect the greatest honor upon those in Exhibition cises reflect the greatest honor upon those in

Then the young soldiers brought their fans into play and performed many unique and applause provoking feats. The fans were weilded with dexterous ease and attractive grace. Round after round of applause was bestowed apon the beautiful young ladies as they executed some difficult evolutions or showed some novel feature in the manual of fan tactics. Miss Hattie Dunlap, a second honor young lady, delivered the salutatory. She spoke without once looking at her manuscript, and was not once disconcerted. Her address was a thoughtful one. It was chaste in diction, original in structure, and rich in illustrations. The words addressed to the teachers and superintendent were peculiarly pathetic. She was applauded to the echo, and was compelled to bow her acknowledgments to the audience.

"Yes and No," was the subject of Miss Ettie Tidwell's original essay. The paper was an exceptionally good one in all respects, peffecting no small credit upon its fair author.

Miss Flora Fain, second honor young lady, delighted the audience with an original essay on "Plain Speaking," which was replete with bright sayings and sensible hints.

was first observed on the roof of Union hall, near the bell tower, and as there had been no fire in the building during the day, a reasonable conjecture is that the dry shingles were fired by a spark from one of the excelsior factories, on Culver street.

The department responded promptly, but a two mile run, over rough roads, made it impossible to reach the scene in time to do more than keep the fire from attaining headway in the adjoining buildings. The heat was intense, and was felt a square away. At one time the roofs of Rockafeller hall, the four dormitories, a row of double dwellings were on fire. One of the finest things on the programme was Miss Eva Gillam's recitation of "The Last Days of Herculaneum." Miss Gillam is not only a really beautiful and graceful young lady, but she is a natural born actress. Her elocution is worthy of all praise. She received unbounded applause.

"A Twilight Idyl," a highly humorous sketch of the tribulations of an impecunious young man in the company of two ice-creamoving youngladies, was recited by Miss Mattie Slaton, with remarkable effect. Every word she uttered could be heard all over the building, and the humor she threw into her delivery was productive of loud and continued applause. She captivated the audience.

A double trio—"Lightly Row My Gondolier"—was pleasingly sung by Miss Maud Allensworth, Miss Eva Gillam, Miss Lillie Crawford, Miss May Ashworth, Miss Flora McDonald and Miss Hattie Thompson.

"The Diver" was finely recited by Miss Ida Atkins, a second honor young lady.

Miss Mary Belle Pendleton, a first honor young lady, recited an essay on "The Golden Fleece," and pronounced in connection therewith the valedictory address to the board of education. This paper was in all points excellent and it was justly appreciated by the audience.

"Summer Fancies" was sung by the class. pital arrangement, and were, therefore, much larger.

The commodious cellars were stored with provisions, and the losses in this matter alone are rated as high as $1,200. Part of the house was used as a kitchen and dining hall for boarders, while the model school, with its furniture and apparatus, took up much of the building. The desks alone cost $500, and everything was of the best. The building itself was a most substantial one, having been constructed under governmental contract. Its, value was probably $10,000. Those best acquainted with the contents of the building estimate the loss in that particular at $5,000 or more.

INSURANCE.

Major Sidney Root, resident trustee, was seen last night and he said that his impression was that the insurance was about $10,000, but he will have to go to his books to ascertain the exact amount. His opinion is that the building was worth fully that amount. He also says that the building will be rebuilt.

Miss Mann, one of the teachers, worked heroically in the midst of the heat and smoke to save the furniture, and did not cease until almost suffocated. She lost two trunks full of clothes. Others of the teachers lost heavily in

For a square away spectators were kept busy putting out fires on hats and clothing. The dress of one woman got into flames, but she was saved at the expense of bad hand burns by Mr. Tucker and others.

There was but little business transacted about the various departments yesterday. At the capitol there was the usu routine business, but there was a decided dearth of sensations. The county courts adjourned until Monday without accomplishing auch of anything.

The Governor and His Cabinet.

GOVERNOR GORDON HAD another very quiet day yesterday, the only order issued being that appointing William Wynne, of Washington, solicitor of the county court of Wilkes county. The application of Mr. Wynne was a very strong one, being numerously signed by the leading lawyers and citizens of the town. Mr. Wynne succeeds Hon. W. H. AN APPLICATION FOR charter was made yesterday by the Alabama Midland railroad, purporting to be a line from Montgomery, Ala., to Bainbridge, Ga., I75 miles in length. The law requires the notice of incorporation to be published for 30 days in every county through which the road will pass, and other requirements are exacted. The application made by the company was not regarded as regular, and it will doubtless be returned for correction.

THE LOUISVILLE AND WADLEY railroad on yesterday returned $24,739 worth of property to the comptroller-general. It is about the last railroad to make returns, the others having them on file. The first of July is the last day for railroad and insurance companies to file returns in, and those waiting after that date are subject to a penalty in the amount of three times their legal tax. Only a few companies yet remain, and those will no doubt make their returns within the next day or two.

THE FOLLOWING INSURANCE companies made their returns to the comptroller-general yesterday: Hamburg-Bremen insurance company paid taxes to the amount of $17.194; the Fidelity and Casualty returned business taxed to the amount of $74.61. CARING FOR CONVICTS

Senator Joseph E. Brown Testifies Before the Committee.

WHAT HE SAID ABOUT THE CONVICTS.

Interesting Testimony Developed Before th nb-Committee—A Strange Case From "Old Town Camp."

When the sub-investigating committee of the penitentlary committee of the house met yesterday morning, a large crowd was in at-tendance, drawn thither by the announcement that Senator Joseph E. Brown would testify. THE CONSTITUTIONS, suggestion that a steno-grapher be employed to take down the evi-dence, had borne good fruit, for a short-hand writer was present. No provision was made by the legislature for the taking down and printing of evidence, and the stenographer yesterday was paid for personally by Chairman

COLONEL HARRISON EXPLAINS.

The member from Quitman, Colonel Harrison, stated to the committee that the pubson, stated to the committee that the published account in the newspapers of the evidence taken before the committee had misstated a few facts so far as he was concerned. Colonel Harrison stated that Colonel Huff asked the questions about the Marietta and North Georgia road, and he had nothing to do with that part of the testimony or examination. He also stated that the question about Captain James being a good farmer was asked by some one else.

CAPTAIN ENGLISH RECALLED.

Captain James W. English was recalled for the the purpose of explaining his testimony. Colonel Huff, the chairman, asked: "Did you really intend to convey the idea that it would cost one million dollars for the state to properly establish the convicts in some business operated wides it over care?"

really intend to convey the idea that it would cost one million dollars for the state to properly establish the convicts in some business operated under its own care?"

"What I meant was that there is now, when the various plants in which convicts are worked, considerably over a million of dollars employed. We have say a quarter of a million in our business. Governer Brown has a very large sum employed in his coal mines; the various plants in other parts of the state will individually amount to a large sum, which, all added together, will amount to perhaps two or three million of dollars. Now it will depend upon what kind of a business the state will indoose to go in it. Of course it will be cheaper to fix up an establishment that contemplates only a few years of work, but where the idea is to have a plant that will permit say twenty years of work, and such a plant, whether it be in land or mines, and intended to be worked by 1,600 convicts will cost a considerable outlay, perhaps more or less than a million of dollars; it is difficult to state the exactamount unless the nature of the business is given.

"When I stated that it was the only labor that could be used to advantage in brick making. I meant this: The order of men engaged in making brick are perhaps lower than any other class of labor. The demand or brick is at certain seasons. If we had to depend upon free labor we could not carry out contracts. We contracted to furnish the state capitol with 16,000,000 brick at $5.41, delivered. The freight was $1.40 per 1,000, which made the brick cost $4 at the works. Taking the average, hard and soft brick, the price is $3.50 to make a thousand. Hard brick cost more, soft brick less, but that is the average. Now, do you suppose I would have taken a contract to furnish 16,000,000 brick, extending over a period of four years, had I been dependent upon free labor would not have done it had the profit been $2, for the risk about the labor would have been too great. It is the certainty of convict labor that makes it v

By Colonel Harrison—"Are you acquainted with Gress's mill business?"

"I am."
"What difference would there be between that mill and a mill operated by the state with similar labor?"
"Well, sir, individual management is always "Well, sir, or other kind. If the state similar labor?"

"Well, sir, individual management is always better than any other kind. If the state undertook to carry on a business like Gress's, it would have to do so by agents. As in the case of the W. and A. R. R., it has been shown that when the state operated the road it did not make money, but when the lessees had it, they did. The expenses of the state would be greater than those of the individual. The state would look after the convicts better. Perhaps, board them at a hotel."

By Mr. Huff: "You admit then, Captain English, that the state would treat its convicts better than an individual?"

"Oh, yes, much better, public sentiment would denand it, and there is no saying what the convicts would not receive!"

By Colonel Harrison: "Is it not true, Mr. English, that the government pays more for what it buys, and gets less for what it sells than individual?"

"I think it is."

"Is there any business you know in which the convicts could be employed where the necessities of the state would be less than those of an individual?".

By Mr. Schofield: "Do you understand by

"I think not."

By Mr. Schofield: "Do you understand by act of 4876, that the occupations specified in act, are the only ones the convicts can do?"

"Those, and all other work suitable to their age, condition and ability."

"Do you think saw milling comes strictly within the act?"

Many other questions were asked Captain English, but the nature of the examination was very much like that of the preceding day, and it would be repetition to give *more than what has been already stated.

and it would be repetition to give *more than what has been already stated.

SENATOR JOSEPH E. BROWN TESTIFIES.

Senator Brown expressed his willingness to answer any question the committee might propose. Chairman Huff suggested that a little more formality be observed in the conduct of the examinations; that some confusion had been caused yesterday by the informality, and that today after he finished his questions, each member of the committee would be allowed to propound any question he saw fit.

Chairman Huff asked the sonator to state his connection with the convict lease system.

'I am a stockholder and president of Dade coal mines, a regularly organized corporation under the laws of Georgia. First leased 100 convicts in 1874 for five years, and kept them until the act of 1876 went into effect in 1879. Dade coal company is known as No. 1. It takes 300 able bodied long time men from the state for 20 years. It also has 124 per cent of stock in penitentiary company No. 2, and one-fourth interest in company No. 3. The No. 3 was known as the Grant, Alexander company then."

then."
"Who are your partners, governor?" queried
Mr. Huff.
"I have no partners; the company is a stock company. The shareholders are Joseph E.
Brown, William C. Morrill, Julius L. Brown, of Georgia, and Jacob W. Seares, of Boston."
"Do you know who is the author of the lease bill?"

"Do you know who is the author of the lease bill?"

"I do not think I have heard it stated positively. It was called the Reese bill, and it was generally believed to have been written by W. M. Reese, of Washington, Ga. I do not know of any connection Captain Tim Furlow had with the bill, though I believe he was in the legislature at the time. It was said that the bill was Mr. Reese's, and that he had had some very carnest consultation with General Toombs concerning it, who was said to have favored it. The Reese bill provides for but one company to be located on an island. The present features of the bill were introduced by amendments. There was no bid made for the whole by one company. I bid for 300 men, and fly competitors also put in their bids.

As TO INDIVIDUAL LIABILITY.

Mr. Huff then put questions intended to elucidate Senator Brown's opinion as to personal liability. He said that he did not think he was personally liable beyond his stock in the company; that the acts of his associates, except where they acted as officers, did not bind the company.

"Suppose at the time the lease was being carried out the state had only furnished you with 100 convicts, what would have been your complaint?"

"I suppose I would have convolved.

complaint?"
"I suppose I would have complained to the governor that the contract was not being carried out in good faith, have asked his help in the matter, and if there were more convicts I would most certainly have demanded my share."

the matter, and if there were more convicts I would most certainly have demanded my share."

"What was your estimate as to the future increase of convicts?"

"I do not know just now whether there was any or what estimate made. Suppose as prudent men we looked back over the past years and noted the increase from year to year, and possibly formed some idea as to what the number would be. We were prudent men then, and I suppose this was done. But I do not recollect any numbers or anything of the sort."

"In your conversation with General Gordon and Mr. Lowe did you ever imagine or express a hope that the number would reach 2,000?"

"I recollect to have had no conversations with the gentlemen about that. I do not think I ever hoped to see the number reach 2,000."

Mr. Huff then asked 'the witness to state how much money he had invested in convicts. Colonel Harrison suggested that the question be broadened so as to include the whole investment, as it was difficult to state just how much there was in convicts.

Senator Brown stated that it was difficult to state just what he had. There was a great many things, such as railroads, cars, etc., necessary to the operation of the mine, that were worth a great deal, and he could not, without an extended estimate, say just what he had in the business.

"Could you work your mine profitably without convicts?" asked Mr. Huff.

"I think so. I am not prepared to say what I would do were the convicts taken away. I might make arrangements to go om with the work, or I might sell out. I cannot say what would be my plans. I am free to say that my property would be very much injured by withdrawing the convicts."

"How many free laborars de you employ in mining?"

"I have very few, possibly four or five mining."

mining?"
"I have very few, possibly four or five mining. The free labor employed are used as drivers, and for other purposes. There are about 100 in all, I should say, and they are paid, when mining, $1.50 per day."
"If No. 3 be declared vacated or forfeited, governor, what would be the duty of the governor?"
"I should say to release the day of the governor?"

governor, what would be the duty of the governor?"

"I should say to release or let the company again. I do not think it would go to No. 2 or No. 1; but in the event of individual forfeiture, I do think the others would get it."

By Mr. Ham: "Does not an act constituting an offense on the part of one be the act of the whole company?"

"The act of regularly appointed officers, or those in authority for the company would be. I do not think that an individual act without the concurrence of the others would be regarded as the act of the company."

Colonel Harrison asked: "What does it cost per capita to maintain a convict?"

"About 60 cents per day, though this includes the cost of maintaining those who are unable to work."

cludes the cost of maintaining those who are unable to work."

THE SUB-LETTING OF CONVICTS.

By Mr, Huff:

"Can you sublet convicts without the governor's consent?"

"I do not doubt I could. In fact, it is done when the convicts are attended by my own guards. I do not mean to say I do it. The idea is this: If a man wishes to hire the work of one hundred convicts for a certain time I see no reason why I could not furnish him, provided the convicts are attended by my guards and remain under the control of the properly constituted authority. I could not sublet and permit the hiring party to provide guards and control them. The meaning of the word "here" in the act is conveyed in what I have said. It would be hiring in the meaning of the act were I to turn over for a consideration so many convicts and let the party manage them as he pleased."

victs and let the party manage them as he pleased."

"Could not the Pennsylvania railroad come down and buy out your right to work the convicts and thus get control of them?"

"It could buy my stock as it could buy any any other stock, but it could not buy out the company. Under the charter the company is a Georgia company, and must always remain so, no matter who the sockholders may be." A spirited controversy here ensued between Chairman Huff and Senator Brown, the former contending that the control of the convicts could pass to the Pennsylvania by reason of the road owning the stock. The witness maintained that under all circumstances the company must remain as it was constituted under pany must remain as it was constituted under the laws of the state. A good deal of expla-nation was indulged in, and some confusion manifested as to what had been stated before by the witness.

"Are you on the bond of James M. Smith?"

"I am not."

"Are you on the bond of James M. Smith?"

"I am not."

"Do you know of any effort made towards the reformation of the convicts?"

They are controlled by good laws, discipline is firm; they have a preacher who is paid $2 a Sabbath to instruct them, and Dade county also sends them a chaplain. Northern societies send their books and tracts, and the officers encourage them to read them. They have had revivals, and some have been baptized under the different forms of religion. At one time I think there was a convict revival at the camp. The most hardened boys are criminals between eighteen and twenty years, but as a Christian man having confidence in the power of the gospel to reform, I do not believe that there is anyone there beyond the reach of reformation. The worst ones are often reformed."

"What are the chances in favor of the young

"What are the chances in favor of the young as against the old?"

"What are the chances in favor of the young as against the old?"

The REFORMATION OF CRIMINALS.

"I do not know. I have not seen very much of that sort of thing and cannot tell."

"What are your views as to mixing them all together?"

"I try and keep them apart as best I can. It is difficult to classify them, and put those whose crimes involve moral turpitude by themselves. We have nothing to go by except the statement made as to what they were convicted of. Frequently it is the case that a man who is in for a crime involving moral turpitude is a better man than one who is in for a lesser crime. The only way to get the good from the bad is to watch their conduct, and judge by that. I think it would be a good idea to take away the women, children and imbeciles and provide other quarters for them. As a lessee and humanitarian, I will gladly assist in any action of the kind, but I deny the right of the state to take them without my consent. The best plan to me seems for the judge at the trial to make some provision for that sort of thing by way of a light sentence or in any other manner that the law may permit."

"Has there been any legislation since the lease favorable to the lessees?"

"None, there was an act introduced to permit the lessees to furnish the discharged convict with a suit of clothes and send him home, charging the amount up to the state, to be taken out in the final settlement. But as Mr.

vict with a suit of clothes and send him home, charging the amount up to the state, to be taken out in the final settlement. But as Mr. Lowe has told you, the legislature amended that so as to cause the lessees to do this without any compensation from the state. I do not think there can be any question that the act was illegal, but we submitted in order that there might not be any litigation."

By Mr. Ham—Do you not pay convicts for extra work?

there might not be any litigation."

By Mr. Ham—Do you not pay convicts for extra work?

"Yes, there are some who finish their task sooner than the others and in the busy season, when orders are heavy, they sometimes do extra work. For this they are paid and the accounts are scrupulously kept. The money can be spent by the convict as soon as it is made, or it is kept for him against the day of his freedom. Particular instructions are given the officers to keep everything exact."

By Mr. Huff—Did you ever hear of your convicts being worked on Sunday?

WORK ON SUNDAY.

"Yes, at the iron furnace, I heard that they had been worked for two Sundays. As soon as I heard it, I ordered it never to happen again. It is necessary to keep the furnace going all the time, but free labor attends to it on Sunday."

"How often do you visit the camp?"

"When I am at home, about once every month or six weeks, but when I am in Washington, of course, I cannot do so as often."

By Mr. Schofield: "Do you think it would be a benefit to both parties to have some middle man at the camp to report upon what actually transpires, not to give orders or interfere, but I would want him to have the power to interfere and say when a thingshould be done. Frequently occasions arise when I would be only too glad to have the benefit of some good man's judgment. But I should wish him to have full power to interfere and prevent abuses."

By Colonel Harrison: "In your reformatory methods do you think you have met the requirements of the statute?"

"I do."

"Is not the large excess of colored convicts due to the lack of any home training for their young?"

"It is."
"Can any system be applied indiscriminately to the races?"
"I think not; it is difficult to say and make any distinction. If exact justice could be done in the administration of penal laws there might be some difference made, but as no state has been able to reach that point, it has never yet been done. According to all law and experience both races are amenable to the same laws."

perience both races are amenable to the same laws."

By Mr. Huff: "Suppose from any misfortune there had been but one hundred convicts furnished you, would you have paid the rental?"

"I would. The lessees are bound for that amount, and expect to pay the $25,000 whether there may be a larger or a smaller number. Of course, we expect to have a governor who will see that the laws are enforced, and who will mete our rights to us, as he will to all."

A dispute occurred between Mr. Huff and Senator Brown as to what he did say in regard to the last question.

The senator finally said that "if I said anything else than what I say now, I did not understand the question and say so now."

Mr. Huff said "whether or not you understood what I asked in another matter, but I certainly would not have asked as foolish a question as the one that elicited the answer you thought was asked?"

"And I would not have made as foolish an answer," rejoined the senator.

After some unimportant questions, Senator Brown was dismissed, and the committee adjourned for dinner

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

The committee met at three o'clock, and proceeded to examine Dr. Houk, Iwho had been the physician to Old Town camp, operated by Captain James. Dr. Houk told a horrible story about the excessive cruelty of Smith, the whipping boss, who made the convicts labor inhumanly in the months of June, July and August. He stated that some were whipped unmercifully, and subsequently died from the excessive beating and whipping.

The inquiry elicited the fact that as soon as the matter was reported to the principal physician he at once informed the penitentiary officials, who sent Colonel Shubrick to the scene. After an invostigation, the charges were found to be true, and Smith was discharged, but no legal steps taken to punish him.

The story as told by Dr. Honk, is perhaps him.

The story as told by Dr. Houk, is perhaps without a parallel in the calendar of convict discipline, and it is hard to see how a man could be possibly so inhuman. To the credit of the lessees and officers, it is stated that as seen as the matter reached them, the investigation followed, and the man was discharged. The committee adjourned until Wednesday, July 6th. Tomorrow a part of the committee will visit the Chattahoochee Brick company camp.

A Multitude of Ailments.

The ailments which afflict the kidneys and bladder are so numerous, that merely to name them would fill a space for outrunning the limits of this article. Suffice it to say, that they are both obstinate and dangerous. To their prevention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is well adapted. The stimulus which it lends is well adapted. The stimulus which it lends to the action of the kidneys when they are lethargic, serve to counteract a tendency to them to lapse, first, into a state of pernicious inactivity, and afterwards into one of positive organic disease, which soon destroys their delicate integuments, poisons the blood and causes death. A double purpose is served by this depurent. It promotes activity of the kidneys, and expels impurities from the blood which have no natural channel of outlet, except those organs. Constipation, biliousness, fever and ague, rheumatism and dyspepsia, are also remedied by this medicine of thorough action and wide scope.
